Teachers

Lars Rydén, Uppsala University, BUP, Sweden
Founder and previous director of the Baltic University Programme. He has worked with sustainable development, not the least energy issues, for many years; he will introduce the theme of this year conference and help through the entire conference. He will contribute on Saturday to the "Managing the change of your energy system" sessions.

Oleg Izyumenko org.350 Sweden, Sweden
Founder of the Wake-Up Call which aspires to be the ultimate partner for people working with youth and sustainability with strong mission to catalyze the development of a new generation of empowered global youth that can take the lead in the transition to a socially, ecologically and economically sustainable society. 350.org is an global environmental organization, headed by author Bill McKibben, with the goal of building a global grassroots movement to raise awareness of man-made climate change, and to cut emissions of the greenhouse gases carbon dioxide to limit its concentration in the atmosphere to 350 ppm in order to slow the rate of global warming.

Christian Madsen

Frederik Holten-Tingleff

Christian Jacobsen

Facilitators' team from the Energy Crossroads DENMARK (http://denmark.energycrossroads.org/) - They will introduce and lead us through their educational tool "Changing the Game" that not only teaches but also enables an informed dialog among participants to discuss burning issues in Energy planning, and have been actively involved in sustainable cooking stove technology transfer to emerging countries, e.g. Uganda, Kenya and Nepal.

Tomasz Branka, Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznan, Poland
Dr Branka is associate professor and vice dean of the Faculty of International relations at the Adam Mickiewicz University. He has been actively teaching and developing the Baltic University courses over several years. He will lead the Baltic debate.

Tomasz Bergier, AGH University of Science and Technology, Krakow, Poland
Jakub Kronenberg. Lodz University, Lodz, Poland
They have as technogist and economist over many years worked with education and applied projects in sustainability managment, especially with muncipalities; they conduct since many years the summer course "challenges for sustainable development in Poland" at the Mogilanov centre outside Krakow in the frame of Sendzimir Foundation.
